

The Expense of Kindness

This Christmas season, about a thousand highschoolers gathered to raise funds for their school. The event was organized by the team of counselors of Gheorghe Lazăr Sibiu.

Once in a while the school opens its gates and welcomes people to buy stuff created or owned by the students. Basically every class had their own market table where they'd sell goods such as candy, books and handmade creations to interested buyers. The purpose of raising the money was to use to the advantage of students by increasing the amount of funds they are given in scholarships. Not only did we do such an amazing act but also all of us got involved in putting everything together and we definitely enjoyed ourselves during this event. Many of us went home with amazing pieces of art the talented students outdid themselves making.

This act of kindness also doubled as a gift for the hard-working students of the school. "This event is lovely, it brings out the good in everyone!" said my friend. The event was exciting and wasn't as hard to organize as you might think. The fun part is anyone can be a part of this even if you don't have that much money to spend, even the smallest amount of money can make a difference! "When is the next charity event?" you may ask. Well to keep up with any sort of occasion check the school web page: <https://www.cngl.eu/>
